

BURGLARS ACTIVE IN SOUTH BEND AGAIN

F. L. Mendez Service Station Entered and Merchandise is Stolen.

Tires and tools valued at between $200 and $300 were stolen from the F. L. Mendez and Co. service station, Lincoln way E. and Jefferson blvd., Friday night, when burglars forced an entry by breaking the glass in a rear window. The robbery was discovered an hour before midnight by Walter Panserich, the foreman, who found the rear door open and more than $100 worth of equipment removed from the shop and left abandoned by the thieves in the alley. The articles missing include six sets of tools taken from tool boxes on automobiles in storage, three motorcycles, one set of headlights, one tail light and three rims with tires and tubes. No money was obtained.

The Builders Supply Co., 243 E. Tenth st., was broken into early Friday night by burglars evidently in search of money. They were unsuccessful in this, according to the investigators for nothing was found missing. A window had been cut with a glass chisel permitting the thieves to get in.

Three Ford machines were stolen Friday night, two belonging to Michigan City owners. The Ford roadster, 1917 model, belonging to the National Grocery Co., was stolen from Michigan at and LaSalle ave. according to a report furnished by F. E. Glass, 719 Cleveland av. Two Buick touring cars, numbers 27813 and 292066 were stolen in Michigan City the local police advised each between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock Friday night. One had an extra large horn, the other a cracked lens in the right headlight.

J. H. Suberra, 1142 Cleveland av., reported to the police the theft of a spare tire, tire and tube from his automobile which had been parked in front of the Baptist church, Main and Wayne st., Friday night.

CHINESE GO UPON MOUNTAIN IN RITE

Thousands Make Annual Pilgrimage in May to the Sacred Mount of China.

SHANGHAI, China, April 15.—"Shantung is the sacred province of China—we must rid this province of provinces of the robbers who are creeping into her heart."

Shu Sien-San (teacher), a typical representative of the conservative old-fashioned scholarly Chinese, was the diner of the Tientsin-Pukow railway speeding along from Nanking to Tsinanfu, the capital of the Shantung Province, and led the discussion of the "Shantung Question" in which a group of travelers were engaged.

As we rushed through the desolate, snow-covered country, with its miles and miles of frozen graveyards, and absolutely no signs of life except an occasional flock of black crows or wild ducks flying against the gray, bleak sky Shu Sien-San talked of Tai Shan, the sacred mountain of China, which is as dear to the heart of the Chinese as is Fuji to the Japanese; of Chufou, the home of Confucius and of Tsinanfu, the birthplace of Mencius, the sage who ranks second only to Confucius.

Tai Shan is more than five thousand feet high. According to tradition, Emperor Shun sacrificed there in the 23rd century B. C. and for centuries this mountain has held a high place in the religion and mythology of the Chinese.

Climb Mountain in May. Confucianists, Buddhists, Taoists, reverent Tai Shan, and thousands of pilgrims from all sections of China climb the mountain during the annual pilgrimage in May.

Ten thousand devout men and women have been known to make the trip in a day, traveling by foot, on their knees, or in the chairs which are carried by the coolie chair-bearers. It is 15 miles to the summit, and the road is paved the entire length. The ascent is made with 6,000 stone steps.

The trip up is wonderful in the spring, as the road follows a mountain stream, filled with cascades and waterfalls and winds on through cypress and pine groves. The picturesque temples, obelisks, shrines and monuments are hidden away among the trees. Half way up is the famous "Middle Gate of Heaven" Temple, and from this point the road grows so steep that chains are placed on each side of the road to aid weary travelers. Among them are hundreds and hundreds of Chinese women wearing rich costumes and hobbling along on their bound feet. The view from the top embraces what is called the "Holy Land of China" where her greatest sages lived and are buried.

Stones Held Sacred. The part the mountain plays in the life of the masses is shown by the fact that in all the cities and villages of Shantung stones from Tai Shan are regarded as talismans.

It is believed to be unlucky for a house to be built so as to face a turning or a crossroad, but if a stone from the sacred mountain is used in building it will ward off all evil and bring great happiness to the family from generation to generation. Such stones are found in houses in practically every province in China.

Ninety miles south of Tsinanfu, the capital of Shantung, is Chufou, the city where Confucius lived and is buried. To reach the city the traveler must ride five miles from the station in a Chinese cart or wheelbarrow.

In Chufou lies the great cemetery covering more than 600 acres and where, for 2,500 years, all members of the Confucian clan have been buried.

The great Confucian temple, the finest in all China, which dates back to 488 B. C., occupies, with its grounds and buildings, about one-third of the area of the town. Its wonderful green-tiled roofs are visible for a long distance, and its intricately-carved stone pillars are marvels of Chinese sculpture.

More than 48,000 mow of land (about 8,000 acres) are given over to the support of the temple and supply the great number of pilgrims and scholars required for the sacrifices according to the sacrificial rites laid down in the classics.

MARY GARDEN TO LOSE OPERA JOB

Chief Conductor of Chicago Company Will Succeed Noted Singer, Report.

CHICAGO, April 15.—Giorgio Polacco, chief conductor of the Chicago Grand Opera Co., will become general director of the company, succeeding Mary Garden, according to apparently authentic reports published here today. The company is now playing in the west and no official announcement of the appointment of Polacco or the retirement of Miss Garden has been made.

Miss Garden, according to reports, may leave the company entirely and engage in concert work, for which she is said to have received attractive offers recently. If she remains with the company, it is believed she will continue as an artist only, with no voice in its managerial affairs.

Polacco has been with the company for two seasons as chief conductor. He is 50 years old, a Venetian by birth, but a naturalized American citizen.

Temperamental Clashes. The retirement of Miss Garden, the first woman director of grand opera in history after one stormy season, was induced by the following factors, according to those in close touch with the affairs of the opera:

1.—Frequent illness of Miss Garden, brought on by the nervous strain and worry of the work of directing. She was ill for two weeks at the start of the season in Chicago, and her recent illness on the Pacific coast was the cause of a large deficit in San Francisco, where she is a great favorite.

2.—Excessive expenditures of money under her direction. The Chicago opera's season just closed was marked by the great sums spent. With the withdrawal of Harold McCormick and other wealthy backers, need for economy is seen.

3.—Frequent clashes between Miss Garden and the leading stars, including Lucien Muratore.

Polacco served last year as conductor and also appeared here during the 1917-18 season in that role. He is the husband of Edith Mason, leading lyric soprano.
